I believe that the United States was wrong for using the draft for WWI. It is not right to force someone to fight in a war. They're basically forcing people to get murdered or injured, and that is a very cruel and inhumane thing to do. This country was formed on the idea of being completely free, and being forced to serve in the military is definitely ~~not~~ against that ideology.

It has been around 43 years since the draft was put into action. What has happened since then? The Gulf War, Iraq, and Afghanistan, all without "draftees" in the armed forces. The way things are now, it'd be hard to imagine ever needing a draft. It should be abolished, and, in my opinion, should have never even been created in the first place.
