

20/20

I think the United States stayed neutral and out of war because they did not know which way the war would go. If they made the wrong allies, it could later result in bad things for them. They also waited because nothing had been directly towards the United States. The United States had basically no enemies at this point and was not in the position to make them. The United States stayed neutral because there was no need for them in the war.

4

Quality of Information

4

Sources

4

Paragraph Construction

4